

A watercolor illustration of a sunset over a lake. The sky is filled with soft, blended washes of yellow, orange, and light blue, suggesting a hazy or overcast day. The water in the foreground is a deep, rich blue, with horizontal brushstrokes that create a sense of movement and reflection. On the far left and right sides, there are dark green silhouettes of trees along the shoreline. The overall style is soft and atmospheric, with visible watercolor textures and some white space where the paint didn't reach.

The lost friend

by Johanna

Last summer I went to the swimming camp with my best friends
Anna, Sophia, Nina, Aurelia, Julia and Nele.

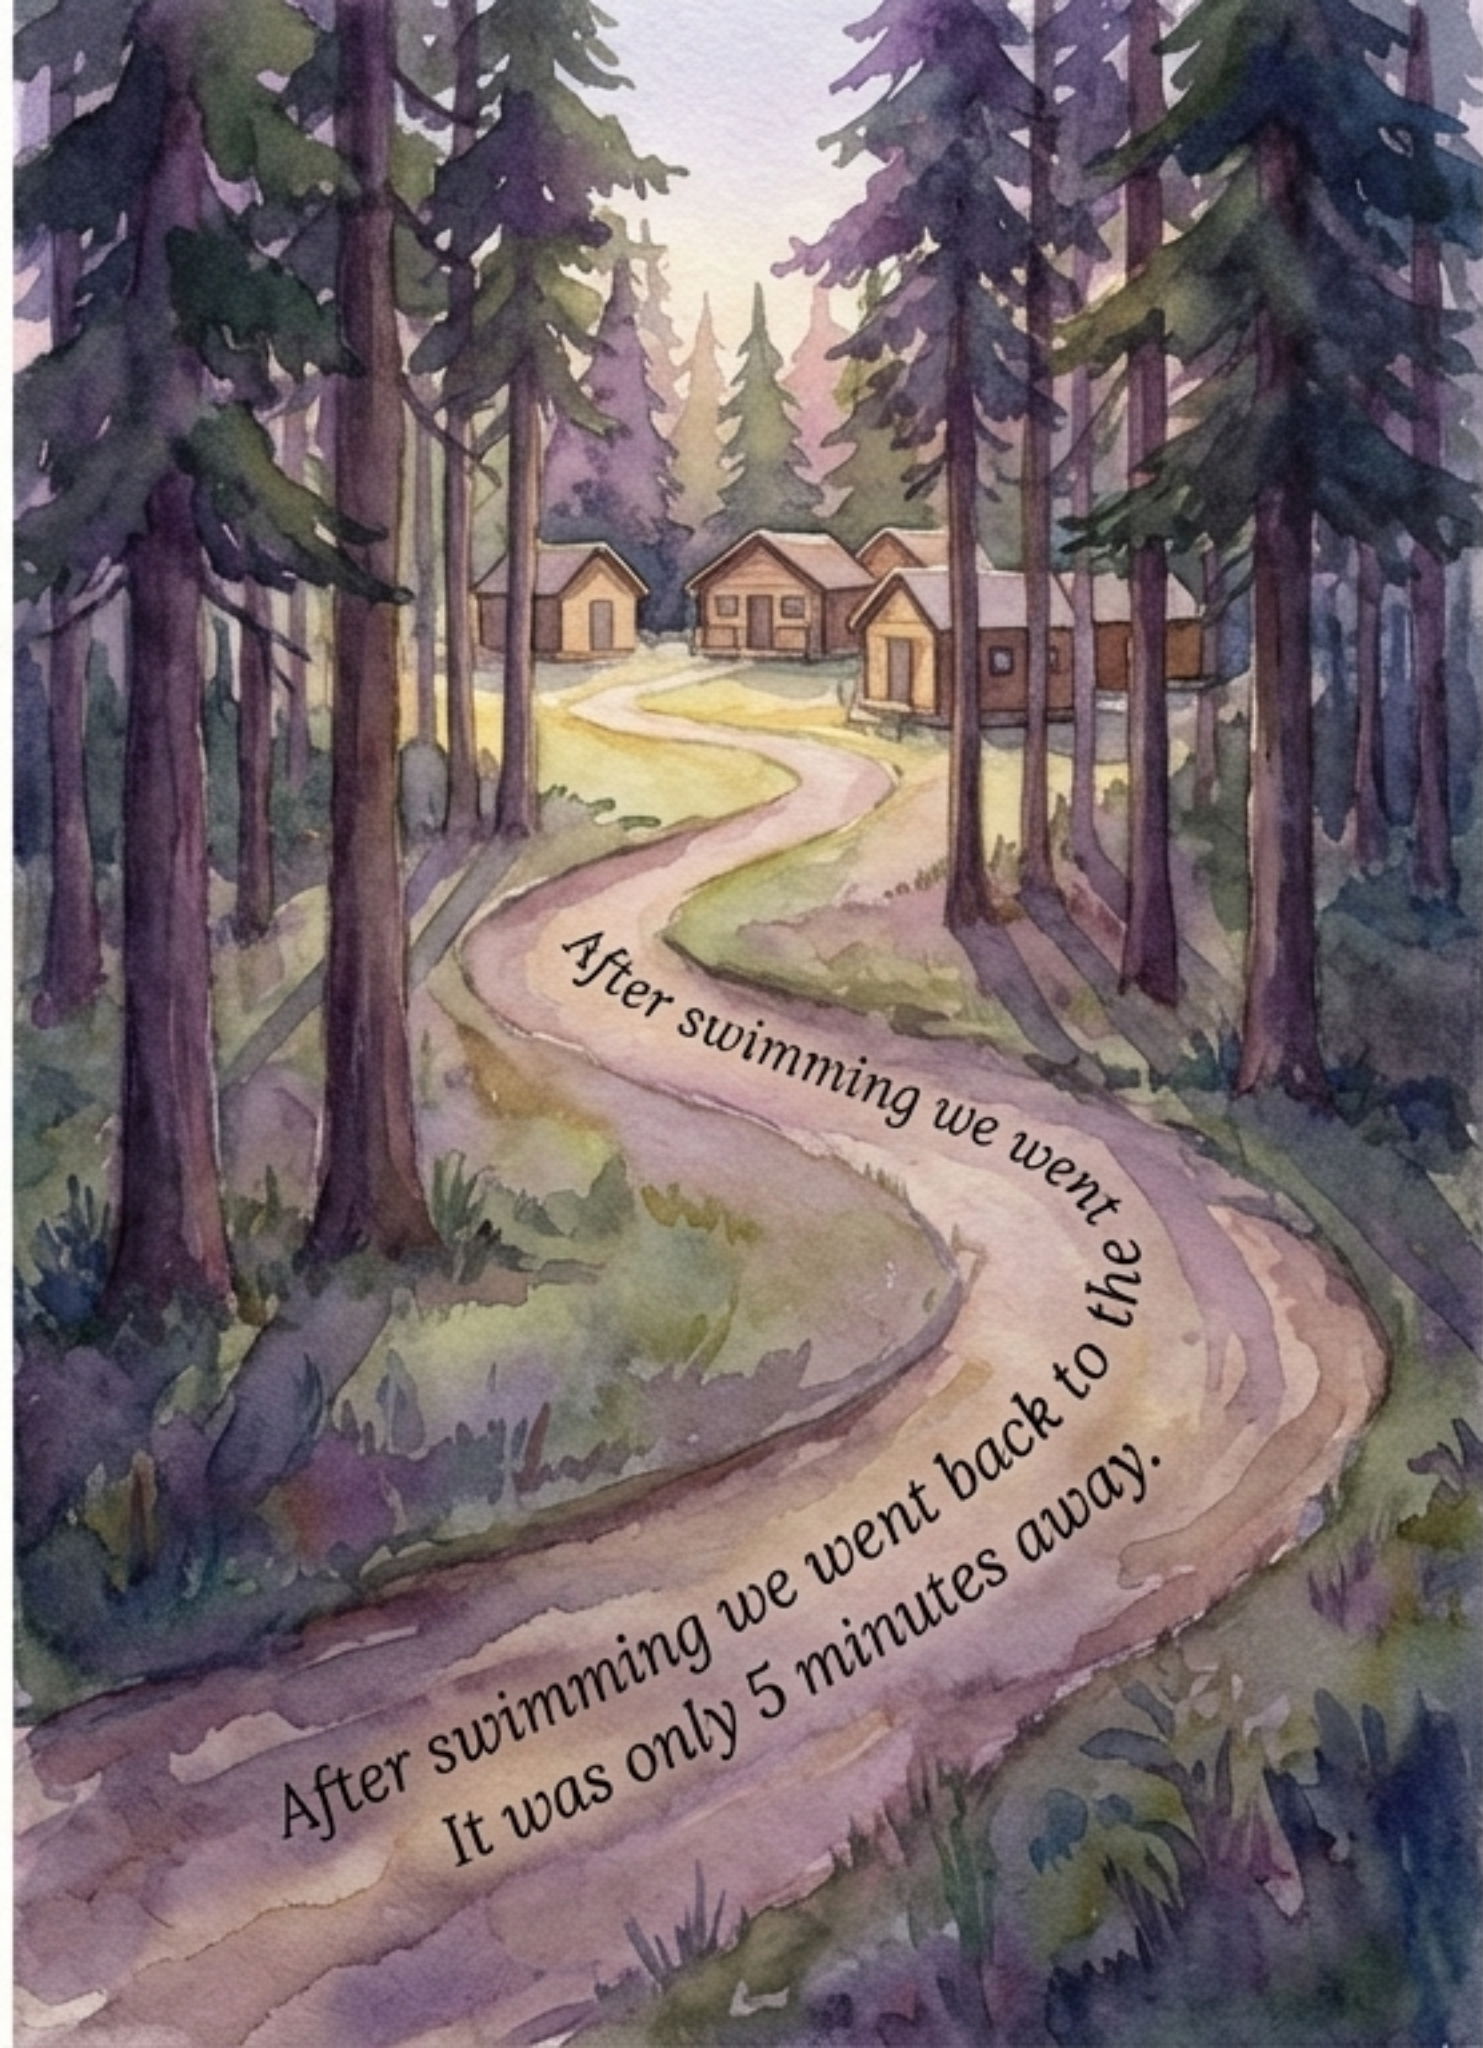

The Camp

We stayed in a big wood with two lakes. One lake was bigger and the other one was smaller. The water in the lakes was warm and it was very sunny. We were all happy and excited.

One day we went swimming in the lake before dinner. We all were so happy, so we quickly got ready.

After swimming we went back to the
It was only 5 minutes away.

When we were at the camp, I noticed that Sophia was gone. At first I told my friends about it, then the guides.

We were all shocked and went looking for Sophia. We heard a cry for help. It was Sophia's voice and it came from the lake.

I ran to the lake.
My friends ran after me.
I jumped into the lake and pulled her out of the water.

She was ok, but shocked. After she calmed down, we went back to the camp.

At the camp we made a fire and drank hot chocolate. That was scary but great.